HPR Circuit Bending http://www.expertvillage.com/video-series/5058_circuit-bending-audio.htm

http://www.expertvillage.com/video-series/4432_circuit-bending.htm

Circuit bending is the creative, DIY (Do It Yourself) short-circuiting of electronic devices such as low voltage, battery-powered guitar effects, children's toys and small digital synthesizers to create new musical instruments and sound generators. Emphasizing spontaneity and randomness, the techniques of circuit bending have been commonly associated with noise music, though many more conventional contemporary musicians and musical groups have been known to experiment with "bent" instruments. Circuit benders remove the rear panel and connect circuits on a trial-and-error basis. More experienced benders use a soldering iron and add oogle launched the App Engine service earlier this year to immense interest from the web development community. App Engine allows running applications on Google infrastructure, including BigTable, Google's non-relational, massively scalable database. App Engine is appealing both at the low end, where small shops don't want to have to deal with hardware procurement and systems administration, and at the high end, where the kind of "instant scaling" App Engine promises to deal with bursty traffic is the holy grail of infrastructure planning.

Aired on 2008-12-17 and hosted by UTOSC

UTOSC 2008: Drupal: From blank to blog in 30 minutes by Dirk Howard Drupal is an extensible Content Management System (CMS) that is used for blogs, forums, photo galleries and many other uses. Installing Drupal on a blank website can be done in as little as 30 minutes. All you need is a web server that can handle PHP, a MySQL or PostgreSQL database, and either FTP or shell access to the web server. Within 30 minutes you can be blogging on your own site that you can customize anyway you want.

Parrot is a virtual machine designed to efficiently compile and execute bytecode for dynamic languages. Parrot currently hosts a variety of language implementations in various stages of completion, including Tcl, Javascript, Ruby, Lua, Scheme, PHP, Python, Perl 6, APL, and a .NET bytecode translator. Parrot is not about parrots, though we are rather fond of them for obvious reasons. Guru at Guru Labs for 1.5 years. I teach, work on courseware, and assorted Perl programming. In my spare time I work on Parrot and recently a roguelike. I've been working on Parrot for about a year, in which time I've written a LOLCODE and Ruby compiler and done a lot of work on Exceptions and some work implementing features in Perl 6. I'd like to talk about Parrot and/or Perl 6! That's about as specific as I get. If anybody has any more specific requests, I'd like to run

hpr0366 :: The Open Source Data Center

Aired on 2009-05-27 and hosted by UTOSC

During the last 10 years of system administration I have been involved in a number of data center migrations and build-outs. As these projects came and went I began to see patterns emerge in the set of services and software required to run a successful operations infrastructure. This presentation will describe these patterns, and provide an overview of the Open Source software available to implement them. About Dan: Dan Hanks has been involved with Linux System administration since 1998, when he worked for EagleNet Online, a small ISP in Provo, which, in a sense, was the birthplace of PLUG. After EagleNet he worked as a systems and database administrator for Nothsky/About.com/Primedia/United Online and is currently a system administrator for Omniture. He has varied interests, ranging from computers and technology to astronomy, ecology, music, art, and family.

hpr0371 :: Introduction to SELinux

Aired on 2009-06-02 and hosted by UTOSC

The traditional Unix security model is simple and beautiful. For decades it has been good enough for most people. However, it is starting to show its age. In the highest security settings, a more fine grained control system is needed. In the past, this meant using expensive, complicated, special purpose versions of Unix: trusted systems. (Trusted Solaris, Trusted AIX, Trusted HP-UX) SELinux, created by the NSA, is the most mature and complete response to the need for Trusted Linux systems. Unfortunately, because of the difficulty creating and maintaining trusted systems, their success has been limited. This is no longer acceptable. Today, even desktop systems and cell phones need high quality security. Imagine being able to sandbox your Web browser and e-mail client. The traditional Unix model makes this difficult and only partially possible. SELinux, on the other hand, makes fine

Some Common STOP codes: Bug Check 0xA: IRQL_NOT_LESS_OR_EQUAL

The IRQL_NOT_LESS_OR_EQUAL bug check has a value of 0x0000000A. This indicates that Microsoft Windows or a kernel-mode driver accessed paged memory at DISPATCH_LEVEL or above.

The following parameters are displayed on the blue screen. Parameter Description
1 Memory referenced 2 IRQL at time of reference 3 0: Read 1: Write 4 Address which referenced memory Cause This bug check is issued if paged memory (or invalid memory) is accessed when the IRQL is too high. The error that generates this bug check is usually caused by a driver that is not properly installed or configured.

Aired on 2009-12-02 and hosted by monsterb as part of the TiT Radio series.

From PC Radio Show website:

"Our guest was Richard Stallman, the man behind GNU and the Free Software Foundation. He condemns the Amazon Kindle (his term for it is the "swindle") because it takes away freedoms that readers of hardcopy books enjoy. Freedoms such as the ability to lend a book to a friend, to borrow one from a library, to buy one anonymously by paying cash, to keep a book as long as we like and to give it away. The Amazon Kindle implements DRM - digital rights management - to restrict your use of books. He is not against eBook readers per se, just the DRM, which in addition to the above also requires you to run proprietary software to read eBooks. He urged listeners to go to Defectivebydesign.org and sign up to participate in his protests."

Aired on 2010-11-08 and hosted by JWP

first I wanted to share my contact information.
and my rss feed to my show <http://jwplinux.libsyn.com/rss>
I wanted to talk about two places that really helped me in learning about the command line. Both do not run linux one runs net bsd and the other runs open vms. Both are so geeky you need to beat it away with a stick.
I use really often and have learned so much from the use of sdf public access unix system. It was first done up in 1987 and I really like it. I saw it once in Seattle it is great thing to view. If you liked the old compuserve you are going to love this place. Its free but if you donate I think 10 bucks you get a lot more out of it.
The second place is death row vms I did a pod cast with bev a while back and its a great place to do unix. its based on open vms which if you can not love it you

hpr0606 :: Thread Repair

Aired on 2010-11-29 and hosted by pokey

Not all threads are perfect, but they can be. Hackers sometimes become makers, and makers sometimes use threaded fasteners. Fasteners sometimes need a little TLC before they can serve you as well as you'd like. Also Whiskey pairs surprisingly well with Cheez-its® and Play-Doh®. hpr0613 :: alternative investing and how the internet changes the game

Aired on 2010-12-08 and hosted by JWP

Shownotes from <http://jwp5.wordpress.com/2010/11/16/alternative-investing-and-how-the-internet-changes-the-game/>

For My hacker Public Radio spot.

Recently, I had a chance to review about 30 years of my investing and savings. Being a live long member of the save 10% club and having been debt free for a number years I thought I needed a review.

Having been in the military I had picked almost all the wrong kinds of things to invest in in the pre-internet era that one could think of.

A few years ago when Ron Paul was running for President.

I stumbled upon his web site.

hpr0616 :: Surfraw

Aired on 2010-12-13 and hosted by Dave Yates

Surfraw: Shell Users' Revolutionary Front Rage Against the Web

About Surfraw

Surfraw provides a fast unix command line interface to a variety of popular WWW search engines and other artifacts of power. It reclaims google, altavista, babelfish, dejaneux, freshmeat, research index, slashdot and many others from the false-prophet, pox-infested heathen lands of html-forms, placing these wonders where they belong, deep in unix heartland, as god loving extensions to the shell.

hpr0617 :: So You Wanna Start A Band?

Aired on 2010-12-14 and hosted by Thistleweb

Many people only think about it from the fans perspective, without realizing the different steps it's taken to get to them. ThistleWeb talks about the current copyright cartel thinking in how it affects musicians. The same people who claim to speak on behalf of artists, lobby to enshrine laws supposedly for the artists. He talks through the process of starting a band and how often these laws crop up forcing the next generation of musicians to spend a LOT of money to stay legal, or be criminalized. Staying legal means coughing up to maintain the status quo.

He ends with a brief comparison of how things can work under a Creative Commons license.

He forgot to mention the parallels with the Musicians Guild in Discworld by Terry

hpr0618 :: Installing Windows XP in VirtualBox

Aired on 2010-12-15 and hosted by arfab

I use GNU/Linux for everything except one program that I need for work. Even the odd Windows games I've played run nicely in wine now, but not this. I have looked for Open Source alternatives but so far have not come across anything I can use in the same way so that means I have to have an install of Windows on hand just for this one purpose.

In this podcast I am talking through setting up a virtual machine using VirtualBox, and installing Windows XP on that virtual machine.

If you would like me to make further episodes on this topic, maybe installing a different OS, or how to tweak this WinXP install once it is up and running then please drop me a line either on Twitter or identi.ca: I am @arfab: or email me on:

hpr0645 :: The Dinosaur's Dilemma

Aired on 2011-01-21 and hosted by Curbuntu as part of the Interviews with "Baylee Juran" series.

Intro: Most of us grow into our computer knowledge gradually, starting because of an innate curiosity, figuring things out through trial and error, desiring to accomplish certain tasks, or just possessing a genetic predisposition to geekiness. But what would it be like as a non-geek to come from a non-technical background and be thrown into "the deep end of the pool," challenging yourself to learn as much as you could from scratch, and to learn it all as quickly as you could? In Curbuntu's first interview with "Baylee Juran," a career public-school teacher (and self-described technological "dinosaur"), Baylee shares what motivated her to lay aside a comfortable, if frustrating, teaching paradigm in the hope of evolving into a 21st-Century instructor. (Note: No cockatiels were harmed in the recording of this interview.)

In this podcast I review the comments I received for the first one as well as bring the good news of the website being complete.

Also, I go over a few quotes from The Plague by Albert Camus and compare it to the popular hacker news website, Reddit.com. More time is spent on the Read part than the Code part, but maybe that will even out in the future. It's easier to cover book quotes than code snippets from Erlang on a podcast.

hpr0669 :: QSK Netcast 6: The Origin of Open Source

Aired on 2011-02-24 and hosted by KFive as part of the QSK series.

Originally aired on OCTOBER 15TH, 2010

This episode of the QSK Netcast is the audio recording of my talk at Ohio Linux Fest 2010 entitled "The Origin of Open Source." The talk turned into a strange but, I think, interesting melange of Open Source philosophy, history, sociology and religion. The biggest problem was the poor audio recording equipment used in a very large room so the audio may be difficult to understand in a few places. I did what I could to clean it up using Audacity, but it's simply not great. Hope everyone enjoys it, though. I'm going to attempt to put up written transcripts of all my episodes starting very soon.

The Eurotrash Security Podcast
Most podcasts in the Information Security realm are US-focused. While we love and continue to listen to these, we thought something was missing: a EU-focused Information Security Podcast. And this is our attempt to provide you with one. Easy? Not at all. Podcasting is hard, no doubt about that, and we will probably suck for some dozen episodes to come. But we believe that we will get there, just bear with us ...
Episode 19: Haroon Meer is one kick-ass dude from South Africa and found some spare time to talk to us on behalf, his new venture Thinkst, Zacon and other stuff. And Wicked Clown is back!

Proposal for a new HPR "series"

What web resources (instructional sites, podcasts, video tutorials) and dead-tree resources have you found helpful in learning Linux, programming, and F/LOSS software? In the tradition of our standard contributor podcasts (like "How I Got Started with Linux" or "My First Computer"), Curbuntu proposes an ongoing category in which we share these learning resources with each other.

The topic is kicked off with these suggestions:

- The Hewlett-Packard Learning Center (http://h30187.www3.hp.com/all_courses.jsp). While signing in with a hpr0697 :: Aaron Seigo talks about accessibility in KDE. An outtake from Frostcast Episode 36.

Aired on 2011-04-05 and hosted by Jonathan Nadeau

After his outspoken criticism of accessibility in Ubuntu, Jonathan Nadeau has become the standard barer for accessibility on the FLOSS desktop. In his interview with the KDE spokesperson Aaron Seigo, Jonathan didn't ask any questions about accessibility. I was expecting to hear what accessibility improvements are in the pipeline for KDE.

When I contacted Jonathan about it he immediately replied saying that they did talk about accessibility. He didn't add it as the show was running to long and that he might release it as a separate podcast. I floated the idea of releasing it on HPR and he was kind enough to mail me the segment.

hpr0698 :: How I Found Linux

Aired on 2011-04-06 and hosted by code.cruncher

After years of using Unix, Mac, and Windows I finally converted my two Windows computers to Linux for real.

The journey into Linux started with not being successful at writing a startup script for Linux. A few years later I discovered some Linux love when writing a driver that would make the keyboard LED lights blink the morse code of the letters being typed. A year ago I did a few virtual Linux installations (archLinux, Debian) in VirtualBox to test out some Cloud Computing stuff. Before Christmas 2010, I was considering contributing to the KDE project and installed Kubuntu as well as Ubuntu.

This year, because I am going to the LinuxFest NorthWest (and I am going to have a table there for HackerPublicRadio) I had to install Linux on my old

We rejoin MrGadgets path to Linux stopping off at the Knoppix station

hpr0753 :: ILF 2011: Interview with Klaatu of Slackermidia

Aired on 2011-06-21 and hosted by KFive

In this episode KFive does unto klaatu as he has done unto others.
<http://www.slackermidia.info/>

What is Slackermidia?

Slackermidia is documentation providing the information a user will need to create a full multimedia studio from a Slackware base install. Inspired by Linux-From-Scratch, it is intended to be a "distro from text"; a do-it-yourself Linux studio beginning with installing Slackware and ending with what we will call "Slackermidia" with all the custom-compiled and configuration of only the best in multimedia content creation tools that Linux offers and the user requires to achieve their artistic goals.

hpr0754 :: The Language Frontier Episode 6

Aired on 2011-06-22 and hosted by Skirlet as part of the The Language Frontier series.

In this last episode of the language frontier on syndicated Thursday and was recorded some time ago.

The final episode of The Language Frontier tackles the question of a universal language.

hpr0755 :: LINUX JAZZ BALLIN' THE JACK

Aired on 2011-06-23 and hosted by Bariman

The Jack Audio Driver . . .

For serious audio it is essential that the Linux kernel operates in real-time mode.

Switch on through the 'Set-up' tab, under 'Parameters, from the QJackCtrl. Set the sample rate, say 44,100 for maximum compatibility. Set the buffer size ('Frames/Rate'), say 256 which (for me) produces an 11.6 ms latency.

Add two lines of code to the file 'limits.conf' in the '/etc/security/' folder (before the '# End File' marker), as follows

@audio - rtprio 99 and @audio - memlock unlimited

hpr0758 :: Interview with Jon "The Nice Guy" Spriggs
Aired on 2011-06-28 and hosted by Ken Fallon

CCHits.net is a site promoting and featuring Creative Commons licensed music and the podcasts that play them. The site was designed with more than just this in mind. Here are some of the highlights

• Encourage and Discover Great Music

There's a lot of great Creative Commons Licensed Music out there, and not enough people know just what you can get hold of! To help ease the burden of this issue, there are three things that we do:

- By linking directly to artist's home sites rather than to our own holding pages for artists, we ensure that the artists get hpr0757 :: Episode 0: "Acknowledgement Courtesan" hpr0764 :: Matt Grove of Miserware - Energy-saving computing Aired on 2011-07-06 and hosted by Robin Catling as part of the Full Circle Podcast series.

Energy-saving computing. It's a neat concept, saving you money by saving you electricity. That's money off your utility bill while you do your bit to save the planet. Granola is software that improves the energy efficiency of your PC or laptop. A few weeks ago I spoke to Matt Grove from Miserware, who explained how it works...

hpr0771 :: Mischief Managed

Aired on 2011-07-17 and hosted by Thistleweb

With Customs in various countries acting as Copyright Cops, using any excuse to rifle through your personal and private data not only for threats, but copyright infringement. Wouldn't it be great to have invisible ink? You can get your private data through Customs, under the scrutiny of the Copyright Cops while also being a fully cooperative model citizen.

ThistleWeb discusses three ways to do this with the drawbacks of each.

- Using a Cloud service of some sort to store your data on as you travel, where you upload then download after going through Customs.
- Using a decoy user account on your regular installed distro

hpr0772 :: Circuit Bending

Aired on 2011-07-18 and hosted by NewAgeTechnoHippie

I realize that what I have done is not truly circuit bending, but I felt that it was interesting and was the closest related topic to my hacking.

Tools I have used:

Precision Screw drivers: flat, philips, torx, triwing, and allen
knife or wire cutter

hpr0773 :: Gabriel Weinberg of DuckDuckGo

Aired on 2011-07-19 and hosted by Ken Fallon

Today's interview is with Gabriel Weinberg, founder of DuckDuckGo. DuckDuckGo is a search engine based in Valley Forge, Pennsylvania that uses information from crowd-sourced sites (like Wikipedia) with the aim of augmenting traditional results and improving relevance. The search engine philosophy emphasizes privacy and does not record user information.
